

Punchy 'Trick Boxing' is a hit

It's a technical knockout for Brian Sostek and Megan McClellan, whose 45-minute takeoff on cliché-spangled B-movies of yesteryear is stuffed with more tricks than a vaudevillian's trunk. This vintage tale boasts gaudy patter, multiple characterizations in a Babel of accents, fighting dolls and swanky dancing, including a pat-a-cake primer of pugilism to "Tea for Two." If this were a B-movie world, a big-time producer would jump up from the audience at the end and offer these kids a job. (Hey City downstairs)

— John Habich

Fringe
Festival